SECOND GANGWAY WILL BE CUT AT PIER 7 SHORTLY

Harbor Board Not Required to File Building Permit for New Piers, Says Ruling

An additional gangway to relieve the present passenger congestion at Pier 7 when the big Toyo Kisen Kaisha liners dock will be built by the board of harbor commissioners next month. The board will also not have to pay the building permit fee of $400 demanded by City Building Inspector Henry Freitas for construction of the new piers, 8, 9 and 10.

These are the two most important pieces of business transacted by the board of harbor commissioners at its meeting late Tuesday, although another transaction worthy of note is that the board voted to accept Allen & Robinson's offer of $2400 a year for Esplanade lots leased as a part of its lumber yard at Pier 11. The lease is so arranged that the board can cancel it on six months' notice if the land is needed for new pier construction.

Permit Not Necessary

"These piers, 8, 9, and 10," reads the opinion of Deputy Attorney General Arthur G. Smith, relative to the building permit controversy, "are the property of the Territory of Hawaii, and you are advised that the board of harbor commissioners is not, in the opinion of this office, required by law to secure a permit for construction of piers 8, 9 and 10, which piers are being built pursuant to appropriations in Act 193, S. L. 1915, and that the building and plumbing inspector of the city and county is without legal authority to demand that you file an application for such a permit." The opinion is approved by Attorney General I. M. Stainbeck.

Will Cut Second Gangway

The board voted that Chairman Charles R. Forbes be authorized to carry out the recommendations of Capt. William R. Foster, the harbor master, relative to putting in an additional gangway at Pier 7, as soon as he can do so. A motion was also carried to have Chairman Forbes write to the agents of all steamship lines in Honolulu, suggesting that they authorize the chairman of the board to employ the harbor police to regulate traffic to and from steamers when discharging and receiving passengers.

Higher Fence Recommended

"I would suggest to the board that another opening cut makai of the present one (at Pier 7) to allow the use of another gangway, the exact location to be determined after the arrival of the Shinyo Maru September 4, at which time I will mark the location," is the recommendation made by Harbor Master Foster. Another is that a higher fence be erected, at least five feet high, on the balcony, better to control the crowd.

BOOZE AND GUN PLAY BIG PARTS IN MURDER CASE

Drink-Crazed Man Shoots Down Man With Whom He Had No Real Quarrel

Murder and booze went hand in hand last night when S. Kaluhine was shot to death at his home on Asylum road, near School street, by a man thought to be H. K. Lonokapu, who is now in jail.

It was only one more of the many cases where the nefarious practice of irresponsible persons carrying dangerous weapons, absolutely unrestricted, this time coupled with the liquor evil, led to the inevitable results.

Given a loaded revolver and filled with gin, a man ran amuck, threatened to shoot his wife, fired three wild shots and finally brought down a man against whom he apparently had no grudge.

The police say that Lonokapu is a well-to-do rancher on the island of Hawaii and came to Honolulu only yesterday with his wife to place their little boy and girl in school. Stopping at Kaluhine's house, the day was spent drinking and about 11 p. m. came the tragedy.

Kaluhine is said to have argued with Lonokapu about the Bible, long after a number of guests had departed. According to the police story Lonokapu became enraged, rushed into his room for his revolver, threatened his wife when she tried to keep it from him, ran out and opened fire with fatal results.

Policeman George Kilia heard the shooting and hurried to the scene to arrest Lonokapu. Deputy Sheriff Asch, Detective McDuffie and Police Surgeon Ayer were then called.

Dr. Ayer says the man died almost instantly with a bullet through his heart. The other two shots went wild. Dr. L. L. Patterson, assisted by Dr. Ayer, made a postmortem examination of the body at the morgue this morning.

Deputy Sheriff Asch found the pistol in the yard, where it had been thrown through a window, following the shooting.

There will be an inquest tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Lonokapu had been in a fighting mood for some time, according to McDuffie, who has learned from officers of the Mauna Kea, in which Lonokapu arrived Tuesday morning, that he tried to start trouble on the boat.

A third man, who was present at the shooting, says the two principals had been drinking sake all day and started in on gin in the evening.

Kaluhine was a stevedore and is survived by his wife and two grown sons, one here and one on Hawaii. He was about 45 years old.

Lonokapu has been employed by the Pahoa Lumber Company of Hawaii and is said to own considerable land and cattle.

DOZEN PETITIONS ARE TURNED IN BY CANDIDATES

Four Today and Eight Tuesday Show How Active is On Gain Around Islands

Twelve nominating petitions—count them, twelve.

This is the rate at which candidates have been hurling their hats and $10 gold-pieces into the campaign ring for the last 24 hours. Not since the first one was filed has there been such a rush.

Those filed this morning included:

John K. Mokumai, Moanalua, Oahu, candidate for the house from the 5th representative district, Democratic ticket.

J. E. Kuapuhi, sent in new petition to run as Republican candidate for the house, instead of non-partisan. He lives at Hanalei, Kauai. His old petition was to run as a non-partisan, but he has changed his mind.

Charles H. Wilcox, Lihue, Kauai, running on the Republican ticket for the house, from the 6th representative district.

Petitions filed late Tuesday were as follows:

Manuel C. Picance, Wailuku, Maui, candidate for the house, on the Democratic ticket, 3rd representative district.

Sam Kunia, corrected petition filed. He left out the name he desired on the ballot, on his first petition. He is running for the house on the Republican ticket. Lives at Kihel, Maui.

Abraham L. Louison, the "Coffee King of Hawaii," against Prince Kuhio, is in the race for Congress, to secure the Republican nomination. Louison lives at Paulilo, Hawaii.

Norman K. Lyman, running for the house, from the 1st district, Republican. Lives at Waiakae, Hawaii. Has served two sessions already.

Manuel G. Paschoal, running for the house, from the 3rd district. Lives Puunene, Maui. Is a Republican.

John Leal, Democrat, lives Hilo. Running for house.

Edward Wainoholo, Lahaina, Maui. Running for house, from 3rd district, Republican.

Charles Kaanoli, candidate for house, 3rd district, Republican. Lives Kamalo, Molokai.

BOYS ARE FREED OF CHARGE THAT THEY STOLE CAR

Cases of Julian Holo and Peter August Nolle Pressed by City Attorney's Office

Julian Holo and Peter August are not guilty of first degree larceny, in that they stole an automobile belonging to Attorney M. F. Prosser. At the instance of the city attorney's office their cases were nolle prossed in Circuit Judge Ashford's court today. Holo will be returned to the Boys' Industrial school, from which institution he recently escaped.

The prosecution said that it was August Kekono and Dan Kamaha who really stole the automobile and abandoned it at the Pali, and that Holo and August became mixed up in the affair because they were invited by the other boys to take a ride.

Kekono and Kamaha recently pleaded guilty to first degree larceny, admitting that they were the ones who stole the machine. Each was sentenced to serve two years at hard labor in Oahu prison.

Daniel Yowell, before Judge Monarrat for assault, has been discharged.
